Locker 27 is a gym in Addlestone, Surrey. With a large premises and high number of users they had noticed that their energy bills were slowly creeping upwards.

Worried about the rising cost of their energy bills they sought out a solution. This naturally led to Fidelity Energy. As ever, our first step was to take stock of their energy usage to understand where their energy bills were racking up.

After this, we were then able to start the process of finding solutions that would bring down their energy costs. Our skilled energy procurement team worked through our wide-ranging and extensive list of suppliers to secure a new contract for the client that would deliver on all their needs.

Once a suitable solution was found, our team then began the process of migrating the client's energy suppliers to the newer, cheaper providers. Taking care of everything for them we endeavoured to make it as pain-free a process for the client as possible.

This allowed them to get on with running their business, whilst our team oversaw their energy procurement migration. Leaving them with the outcome they wanted from the start, cheaper energy bills.

Matt Church, Director at Locker 27, said "As soon as my company sent the first email to the team at Fidelity Energy, they have been nothing but professional and approachable. The level of service has been exceptional, prompt and hassle free. As every business owner knows, with all the energy required to run a business, this is exactly the sort of service that is required. They were open and honest from the off and delivered a significant saving on our utility bills for our performance facility. I would have no hesitation in recommending Fidelity Energy to any business looking to lower costs on their commercial utility bills."
